ON

OPERATION

The Blocgram 4000 is very simple to operate. All you have to do put a disc on the turntable and press the ON button.

The automatic control system will then make the turntable rotate at the correct speed and bring the pickup into the first groove of the disk and lower it.

When the disc has finished, the pickup lifts and travels out to the side and the turntable stops.

Manual Operation

The Blocgram 4000 also has provision for more individual operation. You can stop playing, introducing a pause, begin playing in any desired place on the disc, or repeat a section.

OFF

Stop

If you wish to stop playing before the disc has finished, press OFF. The pickup will then rise and travel sideways out and the turntable will stop.

Care of disks

In designing the Blocgram 4000 careful attention has been made to ensure that your records can be played a large number of times with no deterioration of sound quality.

You can help to improve the longevity of your product; for example, you can minimize wear by avoiding dust particles and finger prints on your records.

Dust can be wiped off using one of the aids which are commercially available but it is better to try to avoid the necessity for removing it.

We assume that you keep your discs in their jackets or albums. It is not immaterial how you take out a disc because the friction against the inner side of the jacket is enough to give the disc a static charge so it will attract dust.

Hold the disc jacket so that it's sides bend away from the disc. Put your hand in below the disc so that the middle finger touches the centre hole and the thumb grips the rim of the disc and without touching the grooves of the disc. Pull the disc out of it's jacket in such a manner that the jacket only touches the rim of the disc, not the actual surface.
